Hayworth: Debates in 19th District will help inform voters

Statement by Nan Hayworth, candidate for Congress in New York's 19th District:

Now that the Republican nominating convention is behind us in New York's 19th District and we look toward November, we know what we need to do. Our nation faces never-ending spending by Washington; unchecked, virtually out-of-control deficits; and a jobs picture that is grim at best for far too many of our friends and neighbors.

This fall's election in the 19th District is critically important. I am today inviting Congressman John Hall to a series of five debates, one for every county in our district. Only through vigorous, open debate -- the kind that this Congress has opposed -- can we arrive at the most sensible and effective solutions to our District's and our nation's problems. I welcome Congressman Hall in discussing these vital matters, in locales where everyone in the District can see at least one debate.

These debates will make even clearer the stark differences between the Congressman's views and mine regarding the important issues in the 19th District.
